BEER TASTING GUIDE

DEC 25 – JAN 2

WHAT TO EXPECT

Happy Hannukah! The box in front of you holds eight craft beers from some of our favorite breweries across the country, along with some extra surprises.

Each night of Hanukkah, from Dec. 25 – Jan. 2, open a new perforated window to reveal that night's beer. You're also invited to join live virtual tastings on Night 2 (12/26) and Night 8 (1/2) to explore that evening's selection in more depth.

Use this booklet to find links to nightly beer tasting notes. We also encourage you to rate each beer, and you'll discover useful tools like our beer glossary, tasting wheel, and more to make the most of your Hopy Hanukkah Beer Box experience.

Cheers!

JEWISH FOOD & BEER PAIRINGS

In the spirit of Hanukkah, here's a quick guide to pairing some of our favorite Jewish foods with beer. Don't go looking just yet, but you might find a couple of these beer styles in the box!

Latkes – Since latkes tend to have a milder flavor, pair these tasty potato pancakes with a Pilsner. The carbonation will help cleanse your palate and the slight bitterness will contrast nicely with the sweetness of the applesauce.

Challah – As beer is pretty much liquid bread, it's a natural choice for pairing. Witbiers, which include both wheat and malted barley in the brew, have a sweet and bready flavor that complements the challah well.

Sufganiyot – Jelly donuts are possibly one of the tastiest staples of Jewish cuisine. To balance out the fat and increase the fruit's tartness, try pairing it with a fruited sour beer or a gose.

Brisket – You'll need something strong to pair with this dish! A Stout's roasty, smoky undertones can stand up to the intensity of the meat, and an IPA's bitterness will cut the fat.

Chicken Matzo Ball Soup – The umami nature of this dish lends a great flavor when combining it with beer. To bring it in a bit of bitterness and sweetness, try it with an Amber or Red Ale.
